A Thorny Problem

Villers Foissard 29/06/4: After the heavy fighting around Villers Foissard, General Leroy Watson was concerned about the losses and the number of damaged tanks. Many of them were in the German lines or in no man's land. Colonel Joseph Cowhey saw this as an opportunity to enhance the prestige of the maintenance battalion. With the help of a M25 Pacific tank transporter, he promises to go retrieve the tanks.

Composition of the Armies

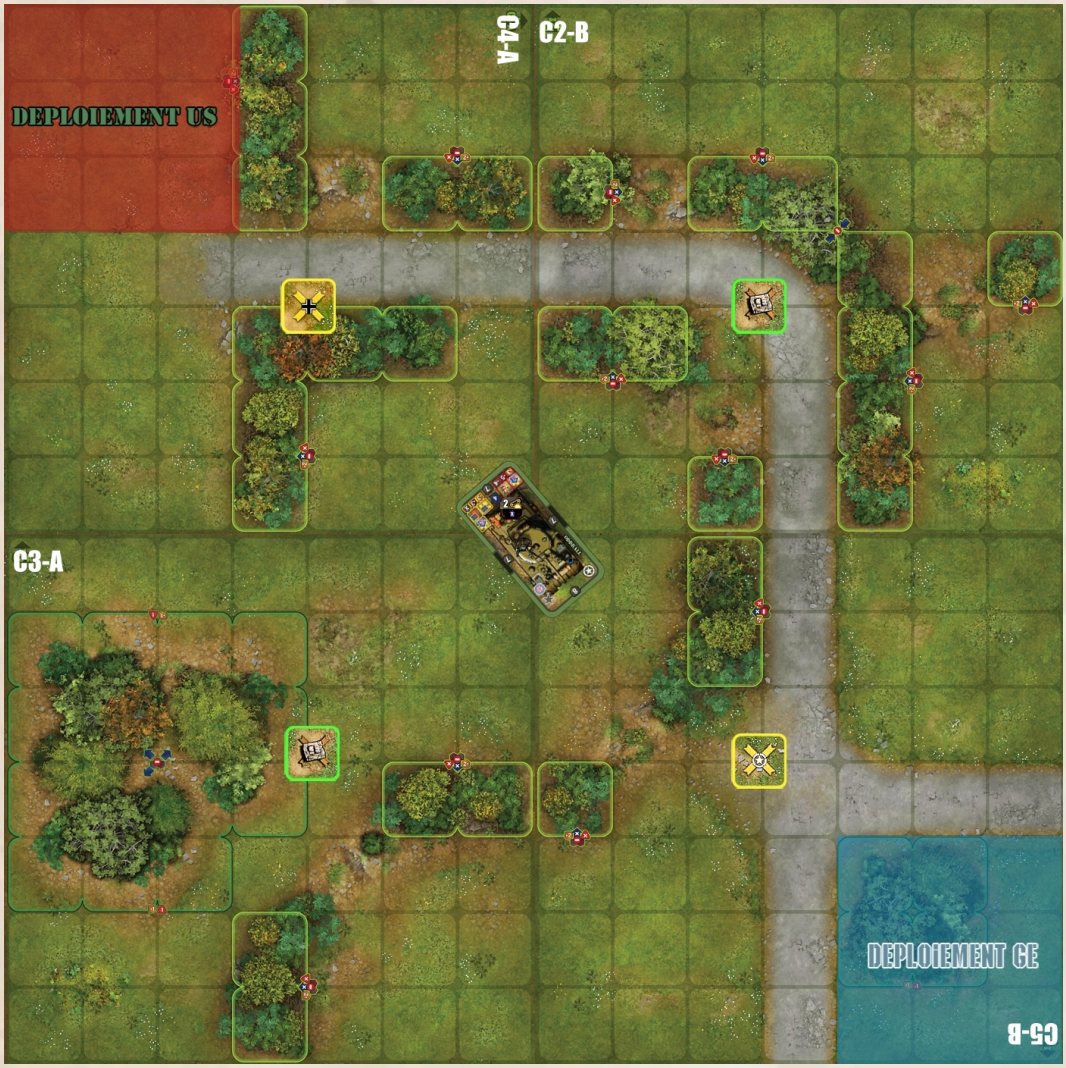

Elements of Combat Command A, 3rd "Spearhead" US Armored Division

Elements of the Panzer Lehr

Battle Maps:

Preparation:

Remove from the American and German decks all Artillery and Aviation cards.

The American player has the initiative and deploys first.

Each player draws 4 cards.

Victory Conditions:

Total American Victory: Control the US objective and the Sherman is in the US deployment area at the end of the scenario.

Minor American Victory: Control the US objective at the end of the scenario.

Minor German Victory: Control the German objective at the end of the scenario.

Total German Victory: Control the German objective and the Sherman is destroyed at the end of the scenario.

Any other result is a draw.

Special Rules:

The Oddball Sherman is immobilized and abandoned. Place a damage marker (2) on it. Oddball begins the scenario with the rest of the American units. He can enter the Sherman according to the rules of transport.

(compendium page 49)

Both Halftracks are tank transporters. They can tow a tank according to the trailer rules (Compendium page 50). The hitch action replaces a firing/movement action in the activation or supply phase. The towing hook is located at the back of the Halftrack, which no longer has transport capacity.

Epilogue:

The front is calm and quiet but the M25 and its 250HP makes a hell of a breeze. Arriving at the last roadblock, the convoy is stopped by an infantryman who tries to dissuade them to go further. A soldier then comes out of a hedge and yells "Who the hell told you to bring this monster here?" Colonel Cowhey gets out of his jeep and says, "I'm Colonel Cowhey and I'm coming for our tanks!". The captain then points his pistol, "I'll give you 15 seconds to turn back your pile of junk and get to camp, otherwise I'll blow your brains out!" Cowhey, to whom a subordinate has never spoken to in this way, gives the order to turn back and return...he realizes he made a mistake. Cowhey is so humiliated that he will not mention the incident when he returns.
