COMMANDER FRASER.

June 7, 1944.
Good evening Commander,
We have an urgent mission for you and your commandos :
At about ¾ mile West of Formigny stands a house on a hill. It serves Jerry as artillery observation post because of its dominant position. The Americans tell us it also literally stands in the way of the planned advance of their 29th division.
They want the house destroyed... So we shall oblige them...
You leave in 90 minutes.
Move in on the house at 0430 hrs., attack at 0515 hrs, just before dawn. Take them by surprise!
Good luck Fraser!

Composition of the armies :

Victory Conditions and Particular Information :

German player deploys first.
British units deploy with ordered units in the activation phase and during the supply phase.
The British player has initiative.
The game lasts for 6 turns.
Maximum visibility is 9 squares.
Long range penalty for shots fired over 5 squares.
Units in ambush out in the open are visible from a distance of 2 squares.
Units in ambush in covering terrain are only visible from an adjacent square.
Dispersal roll distance augmented by one square.
The Commandos carry a dynamite charge. One of them must move into the house and place the charge on the ojective marker before the end of turn 6.
All was quiet around the house. Apart from a few guards, the Germans were asleep. The commandos moved with stealth.
The alarm is NOT given until :
-Either side fires a shot at a visible target.
-A German unit has clear LOS on another German unit that is being assaulted.
-Two German units have a clear LOS on a British unit.
Hence Germans don't move until the NEXT turn AFTER one of these aforementioned possible occurrences.
Suddenly the alarm was given. Hauser, half awake, confused and in panic grabbed the radio and ordered a barrage... on his own position...
Starting two turns after the alarm was given, the German player may play the NEBELWERFER card every turn until the end of the game.
