Campaign

Hakker-Houxvert

The operation Hakker-Houxvert is the result of the co-ordination between American, British and French forces. Its purpose was to break German morale through a series of raids and guerilla attacks during the invasion of Normandie, in June 1944.
It was named after Irish officer Jeremy Hakker and high ranking French resistant Raymond Houxvert who carefully planned, well ahead, this enterprise, aimed at potential strategic targets, resulting in several distinct missions. These were carried out by exceptional men and contributed to the allied victory in the battle of Normandie.
Being of such a secretive nature any information on this operation is really, really, REALLY hard to find in the history books...

FANMADE SCENARIO

Mission 1/4 : Elimination

"Jules Legrand, it is time to take your men into action. You will be accompanied by our liaison officer Clint.
Messieurs... your first mission will start during the night of July 18. You must sneak into a guarded bunker and eliminate German It Hauser. You will make good your escape under cover of darkness.
Bonne chance..."

Victory Conditions :
Before the end of turn 6 :
-Allies : eliminate Hauser
-Germans : eliminate Legrand

Deployment :
Allies deploy in the red zone.
Germans deploy in the blue zone, Hauser is placed in the bunker.
During the turn when the alarm is given, Panzer Luchs may enter through any side of the board at the end of the supply phase.

Particular Information :

Dark night rules apply:
-maximum range/visibility is 7 squares for all troops
-long range penalty after 5 squares
After the allied player moves the first unit, a die is rolled, result unmodified.
After the second unit has moved the die is rerolled with a +1
After the third unit, reroll with a +2, and for the fourth unit with +3 modifier is also +3 for units moving thereafter.
On a result of 6, the Germans have heard the attackers and cry : "ALARM!!!"
When the Germans have clear LOS to the Allied unit(s) they cry : "ALARM!!!"
Until they may cry : "ALARM!!!" , German units don't budge.

FANMADE SCENARIO

DON'T STOP, PRECISION, SURPRISE

Third regiment, Suffolk Infantry Brigade, July 18th 1944 :
Allright chaps! Jolly good show so far. But German reinforcements are underway so it's not the time to stop raining on Jerry's parade. We must slow him down and to do so we shall destroy the bridge that links Saint-Jude-Paume to Camme-en-Baire. Lovely region,... I've been told,... beautiful fruit and splendid cheeses... Should come back and visit really,... after the war... Picturesque towns,... romantic bridge... The bridge??... Don't just stand there!!! SNAP TO IT!!!
BLOW UP THAT BRIDGE!!!

Set up :
Allied player :
Deploy in the red zone.
Assign an explosives token to one unit. If the unit with the token is eliminated, other allied units can pick it up when passing through the spot where it fell.
To destroy the bridge, place the token on the spot in the middle of the bridge, marked as main objective. The bridge will be blown up at the end of the supply phase of that turn.

German player :
Deploy in the blue zone.
The German convoy with reinforcements enters the board, three units per turn in any order.
Turn 1, three units, turn 2 three more units, etc...
Order of appearance of these troops is chosen by the player.

Victory Conditions :
Allies : destroy the bridge before the end of turn 8
Germans : prevent destruction of the bridge

Particular Information :

Allies :
when the 2" mortar shoots,
use the small crater to represent the impact.
Germans :
when the 105 shoots,
use the large crater to represent the impact.

HILL THREE HUNDRED TWENTY-TWO

FANMADE SCENARIO

At Dawn, near Hill 322, July 18th 1944, once again, great minds think alike…
US Headquarters : "Darn! Those krauts are firmly dug in on that hill. No problem though… We have artillery… lots of it!! We shall sweep them off that hill!"

German Headquarters : "Verdammt! Zose Ami's actually believe zey can chase us away from here?? Ve have Artillerie!… Sehr Viel Artillerie!! Vie shall vipe zem off ze face of ze earth!!!"

Battlefield :

Requirements : Core Box, D-day, German army, punchboard Rangers, Craters (download freely from DPG website)

Set up :
place
-1 GERMAN primary objective (red)
-1 US primary objective (red)
-4 bonus tactics counters (green)
Take one set of heavy vehicle damage counters and place them on the terrain boards to mark locations.
Place number :
-1 => top left board
-2 => top right board
-3-4 => middle intersection where all boards meet
-5 => bottom left board
-6 => bottom right board

Victory Conditions :
Both sides have one specific primary objective they must control before the end of turn 6. To have control, they must have at least one friendly unit and NO enemy unit adjacent to the objective. In case of a tie, count the points of eliminated units to determine the winner.

The Cards :
Remove, from both decks : ARTILLERY and AVIATION, PRECISION, DON'T STOP, SURPRISE

And so it happened that both sides planned a coordinated attack consisting of an artillery barrage followed by an infantry attack to dislocate the enemy... Sound plan... alas... both sides' infantry arrived well before the guns spoke. Thus after a terrible delay every infantryman was suddenly subject to enemy and friendly fire.

American Forces :

On that hill, ALL the grunts were running for their dear lives in total chaos. After the noise stopped when the smoke and dust lifted, there were no more battle lines. The survivors were scattered, intermingled, all over the hill...

Now, who gets to stay and who has to go?...

German Forces :

Particular Information :

"The smoke is lifting" :

The barrages have left their marks on the hill. Both players receive one large and two small craters. They now take turns placing one of them on the board until all are placed. Checking the numbers on the heavy vehicle damage counters on the board, for every one of these shell holes, a die is rolled to determine on which board it will end up. On a roll of 3 or 4 players may choose freely on what tile it goes.

"Where is everybody?" :

Dazed, confused, half deaf and covered in dust, the troops try to figure out where they are and if it is friend or foe moving about nearby. Using the same aforementioned location system, players alternately roll a die and put three of their units at a time on the gameboard until all are placed.

The Germans got to the hill before the Americans and roll first for both crater and troop placement

"Take cover!!!" :

At the beginning of turn 3, incoming artillery fire from either side hits the hill.

Before activation, players choose one intersection on the board and place a blast pattern with grey colour code on it. Check for dispersion of the blast and damage.

MISSION 4/4 : K.A.R.D.I.A.C. OFFENSIVE

July 19th 1944, 0900 h.
The first three missions of the Hakker-Houxvert planning drew the Germans' attention away from the preparations for a far greater attack.
It combined two major assaults : one by British and American forces codenamed K.A.R. (KILL ALL REICHMEN), the other one by Canadian and French forces codenamed D.L.A.C. (DÉGAGEZ L'MMONDES ALLEMANDS CRUELS).
The K.A.R.D.L.A.C. offensive struck with such force that it routed the Germans.
The H-H endeavor came at a terrible price but paid off in the end.

Requirements :
Core Box, D-Day, River set, Gazette 0, GE21PZ, Army box : US, German and Commonwealth

Particular information :

-If the Allies did succeed in eliminating Lt. Hauser in the first mission, the German player must remove ALL Aviation cards from the German deck. If Hauser survived, ONE Aviation card may be chosen and included in this deck.

-If the Allies did succeed in blowing up the bridge in the second mission, place a destroyed bridge tile on top of the bridge. The German tank units can NOT enter the game.
If the bridge was left intact, these tanks may deploy in the blue zone across the river.

-If the Americans were triumphant at Hill 322 in the third mission, the Germans now lack an elevated position to shell the Allies and must remove ALL Artillery cards from the deck.
If the Germans carried the day on the hill, TWO Artillery cards may be chosen and added to their deck.
