WITHIN REACH OF AN 88MM

REVENGE AFTER LOOSING A NEEDED SHERMAN

SCENARIO BY CEDEMAJORY & PALETTI
BRIEFING BY COMICBOOK HERO

VERSION 1.0

SCENARIO BRIEFING

Miller knelt behind the hedgerow. The distant rumble of artillery and small arms fire a constant reminder that all around him men were pushing forward. Off the beaches. It had been the same sounds in Africa and Italy. Same shit different place.

The M4 continued to burn in the field to his left, the stink of burning fuel and flesh filling the air. A small shed sat ahead, next to the road. And what was left of C Company, 2nd Rangers, only a platoon now, took cover in the hedgerow. Dog Green had sure taken its toll.

"These jobs just keep getting better," mumbled Horvath rubbing his forehead under his helmet, "and the cavalry's late." He grinned but there wasn't much humour in it.

"I was kind of hoping Ridley and his support would have been here by now too," said Miller checking his watch. "Maybe their expert scout Kowalski, got lost?"

Horvath shook his head. "Doubt it. They reckon he can creep up on you like a snake."

It was Millers turn to shake his head. He turned to Horvath, "Get the men ready, we move without them. They'll have to catch us up. And don't forget the shed."

Horvath nodded. The survivors of the M4 crew had hidden their ground to air radio in the shed. And right about now some help from the flyboys in the P47s would be real comforting.

As he turned to go, Horvath stopped and smiled at Miller. "You know, if they ever made a movie about us, they'd probably leave this bit out."

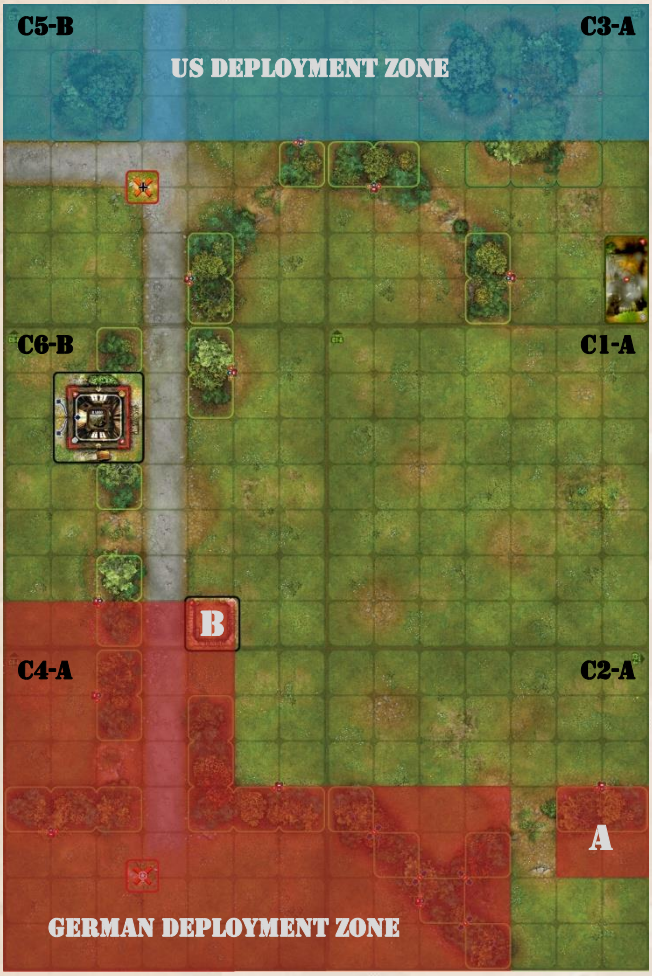

Miller smiled back, "Yep, they probably would Sarge." He checked his watch again and pointed forwards. "Rangers Lead the Way!"

BATTLEFIELD AND DEPLOYMENT

NOTES :

- A defensive position has to be placed on terrain tile C6-B.
- A Sherman M4 has to be placed with it's destroyed side up on terrain tile C3-A.

- A little shed has to be placed with it's entrance away from the road on terrain tile C6-B.

- A radio has to be placed in the little shed.

COMPOSITION OF THE ARMIES

GERMAN PLAYER

NOTES :

- Place the (20mm) FLAK 38 in the defensive position (B).
- Place the (88mm) FLAK 36 on terrain tile C2-A (A). The hedgerow beneath the FLAK can be ignored during the game.

AMERICAN PLAYER

NOTES :

- Kowalski and the 2 Greyhound vehicles are part of group 2.
- The rest of the units are part of group 1.
- The American player retrieves an extra bluff token.

SETUP

The American player chooses three of his Airstrike cards, shuffles these cards and puts them face down in a new deck, called the Airstrike deck.

Next, he removes the following cards from his deck: Bogged Down, Hit And Run, Repairs, Ram, Return To Sender, Weak Point and all the Artillery and remaining Airstrike cards.

The German player removes the following cards from his deck: Bogged Down, Don't Stop, Hit And Run, Ram, Repairs, Weak Point and all the Artillery and Airstrike cards.

The American player deploys group 1 in his deployment zone.

Group 2 will not be part of the game until the supply phase of the second turn. He also chooses which 5 pieces of gear he wants to use in this game.

Then the German player deploys his troops in his deployment zone.

The American player has the initiative. Place the corresponding marker on turn 1 of the order track.

Each player draws 4 cards.

RULE CLARIFICATIONS

When the German FLAK 38 unit is concealed (Ambush special ability) and the American player plays an Airstrike card, the German player can decide to turn over the unit to take advantage of Anti-Aircraft Artillery special ability. He is not allowed to turn the unit to it's concealed side in that same turn.

PLAYING THE GAME

The game lasts for a maximum of 7 turns.

The moment an American unit enters the little shed it can pick up the radio. As long as an American unit is in possession of the radio, the American player gains the following ability:

> At the end of every order phase, the American player has to decide if he wants to call for an airstrike for the next turn. If he does so, he indicates this by placing a spare order marker (number 10) on the Airstrike deck. Calling for an airstrike can only be done twice in the game.
>
> At the start of every turn, the American players checks if there's an order marker on the Airstrike deck. If so, he removes the order marker and draws 1 Airstrike card from the Airstrike deck. This card must be played during the round that it's drawn.

Until the unit is killed, the radio stays with the unit that picked it up. When killed, the radio is dropped and the American player decides on which of the four intersections the radio is placed. Now, the radio can be picked up again.

GAME END AND VICTORY CONDITIONS

The game ends immediately when one of the following four events occur :

AMERICAN VICTORY

- The German 88mm is destroyed.
- The American player takes control of the American primary objective in the supply phase.

GERMAN VICTORY

- The German player scores 13 victory points for destroyed American troops.
- The German player takes control of the German primary objective in the supply phase.

If none of these events occurs before the end of turn 7, it will be a draw between the German and the American player.

In the rare event that the American and the German player both control their primary objective the game will continue if the end of turn 7 is not yet reached. Else, it will be a draw between the German and the American player.
