RECRUITMENT OPTIONS

GEAR OPTIONS

Ammo

Restricted to Infantry

This option gives you 3 Ammo markers.

Each marker grants a +1 bonus to the unit's Combat Bonus during a firing action (alternative or not) against an infantry unit.

Bicycles

Restricted to Infantry

This option gives you 3 Bicycles markers.

This gear gives a movement value of 5 that replaces the unit's movement value unless the unit's value is X. Units that can be flipped to denote a status change cannot use bicycles when turned over, this pertains to f.e. machine guns in firing position, units in ambush...

If the unit is Destroyed, the Bicycles marker remains on the square and any other character (allied or enemy) that stops on the square can take it.

The unit can also decide to get rid of it during a movement action by leaving the marker on its starting square, in which case it does not get the move bonus.

Molotov Cocktail

Restricted to Infantry / Alternate Firing Action

The Molotov Cocktails are used in the same way as grenades (compendium p 56 and 57).

This option gives you 3 Molotov Cocktail markers.

After resolving any damage, if you threw the incendiary grenade into a building, put a Fire marker in the building. If you threw it outside a building, put one Fire marker on each square that is adjacent to the target interspace except for squares that have Water, Ford, or Swamp symbols.

Knife

Restricted to Infantry

This option gives you 3 Knife markers.

The bonus granted by the knife is printed on the marker and may depend on the option.

Discard the Knife marker to add its bonus to the result of your die roll during an assault.

CHARACTER TRAITS

Concealed

Restricted to Infantry

This character trait gives you 2 Concealed markers.

These markers work like the Ambush special ability.

During deployment, then at the beginning of any Supply Phase (before you move your units), you can assign a Concealed marker to any infantry unit that meets the Ambush activation conditions and that has not been activated.

Replace the unit with the Concealed marker and put the unit next to its recruitment tile.

Put on the unit the smaller marker that has the same letter as the larger Concealed marker.

During a Supply Phase, at the end of a movement action by one of your units, you can replace the unit with a Concealed marker, provided the above conditions are met.

When the unit is spotted, replace the Concealed marker with the corresponding unit counter and take back the Concealed marker. You can then use it again in the next Supply Phase.

Julie Aubrac has her very own concealed counter. This can only be used for her character. Other than that the normal rules for units in ambush apply when using this counter.

Tricky

This character trait gives you 2 Tricky markers, which are used to fool the enemy.

They have a concealed side and a blank side.

As long as they aren't spotted, you may play these markers like any other unit in your army. You may even give them Order tokens. Obviously, they can do nothing else but move.

They cannot control objectives (see Chapter 5, Scenario Rules).

Veteran

This character trait gives you 3 Veteran markers.

Each marker enables you to re-roll any roll, yours or your opponent's, if you don't like the result.

You must keep the new result.

You may use a Veteran marker on a die roll you've just re-rolled.
