Eugène Aubin

Carl Paradis is the author of the series No Retreat! and the game Absolute War, about the Russian front in 1941-45.

His grandfather, Eugène Aubin, was a captain in the Régiment de la Chaudière, 8th Brigade, 3rd Canadian Infantry Division. He was rather tight-lipped about his wartime experiences, but at the time of his death, in 1987, Carl was able to speak with many veterans who served under him.

Eugene joined the Canadian Army in the 1930's, before the war he was a Sergeant Major. In 1939 there were not many experienced soldiers, so he was quickly made a lieutenant, then a captain. He was a specialist in heavy weapons, and particularly in the handling of Bren guns and Vickers machine guns. His regiment was stationed in the Aubin family business, a funeral home. The veterans told Carl that during exercises, Eugène Aubin took great pleasure in placing corpses in the headquarters in order to toughen up the troops! He landed in France twice! In June 1940, in Brittany, with the 1st Canadian Division, but was quickly pushed back by Rommel's Panzer Division. Then on June 6, 1944.

The LoS ignore the walls of the Tower.

CASTLE OF BLOOD

Behind the metallurgical factories of Colombelles is the castle of the same name. The building, subjected to heavy bombardment, miraculously escaped destruction. Elements of the 16. Luftwaffen Feld Division and the 21. Panzer Division were entrenched inside and slowed down the advance of the 3rd Canadian Infantry Division. The Régiment de la Chaudière, supported by tanks of the 1st Hussars were sent to dislodge the Germans. Almost 80% of the city of Colombelles was destroyed. On November 11, 1948 it was awarded the Croix de Guerre with a silver star.
