SCENARIO 7 - BRIEFING

INJURIES FOR LOCALITIES!

« Gentlemen, enjoy your pints. That dog's piss may be your last ! So drink it as if it were Belgian « Non peut-être"... We are the closest division to a hamlet which needs to be safeguarded. Whoever holds it holds local water resources in the area. Which amounts to saying that it is indispensable to channel our troops into the rest of France. Oh, one more thing. Intelligence says German troops are headed towards our new objectives. It would appear they have MG 42s."

Major John Marvin, June 10th, 1944.

« Après la bataille, une photo fut prise le 11 juin 1944. Nos braves GI avaient troqué leur pisse d'âne pour de la Rousse de la Brasserie du Mont-Blanc (Ils n'ont jamais trouvé de «Non, peut être ! ». A croire que cette bière n'existait pas à cette époque !). Il paraitrait qu'ils ont aussi testé la locale chatain ... Mais là je ne suis pas sûr que l'on parle de bière !» Commandant John Marvin.
