OFFICIAL WEB SCENARIO

THE PROPER WAY!

St Laurent, France, June 7, 1944 :

On D-Day +1, the bridgehead in the sector of the 29th Division hasn't been fully secured, in spite of the arrival of the 175th Infantry Regiment. Prior to the advance on Isigny, the 115th and 116th regiments are ordered to clean up any pockets of resistance that still subsist in the area. In the morning, General Norman Cota pays the 115th a visit, checking their efforts to accomplish this mission.

1- BATTLEFIELD AND DEPLOYMENT

US Army Box and Steiner Kampfgruppe punchboard are required to play this scenario.*
If you do not have this punchboard, it can be downloaded from this address:*
http://www.devil-pig-games.com/dlm_download/steiner-kampfgruppe/

2- COMPOSITION OF THE ARMIES

3- PREPARATION

Remove from US deck :
Don't stop, It bounced right off it, Precision, Ram, Repairs, Weak Point as well as all Artillery and Aviation cards.

Remove from German deck :
Precision and Repairs, Weak Point as well as all Artillery and Aviation cards.

The US player has initiative.
Position the corresponding marker on turn 1.

The German player places a one-space defensive position in the appropriate deployment zone and deploys first.

Each player draws 4 cards.

4- PARTICULAR INFORMATION

This game is played in 6 turns.

Clint and the Rifle squad enter during turn 2 on the squares with arrows on tile C6-B.

The Americans must control at least two buildings at the end of turn 6.

The Germans must prevent this.

A player is in control of a building when only his troops and no enemies are inside.
Intact as well as ruined buildings can be controlled. Ruins are more difficult to control.

5- VICTORY CONDITIONS

US Victory : The Americans win if they control 2 or 3 buildings at the end of turn 6. Control of 3 buildings is considered a Major Victory.

German Victory : If the Americans do not control 2 or 3 buildings at the end of turn 6, the German player is the winner and even scores a Major Victory if the Americans control none of the buildings.

EPILOGUE

During the fighting close to St Laurent, Cota stumbled upon a bunch of GI's, pinned down by German troops who were holed up in a nearby house. Eager to find out why nobody moved an inch to take the building, Cota found the Captain in command andquestioned him on the matter.
" General, the Germans are inside and are firing upon us! "

" Well Captain, I'll show you how it's done!", Cota replied as he produced two grenades from his pockets.
"You and your men provide covering fire. Meanwhile I'll take one of your squads and demonstrate how to storm a building that has hostile Germans inside..."

Stupefied, the Captain observed how Cota used the cover of a hedge whilst outflanking the house. Suddenly the assailants jumped up, howling like wildmen, as they threw their grenades through the windows of the house. Cota violently kicked in the door and lobbed another grenade inside. Right after it had exploded, the General raced indoors, closely followed by the infantry squad. The Germans quickly made themselves scarce through the backdoor and swiftly skedaddled.

Cota went back to the Captain,
" Did you see how to take a building? Do you understand? I won't be around to showyou a second time and I can't do this for everybody! "

Later, Lcl Cooper, who had witnessed the scene, suggested it might be better if the General refrained from putting himself in such great danger. Cota explained :
" I'm a poor fellow from Dutch county in Pennsylvania. Schooling was free at West Point, so that's where I went. I have a contract with the government. Since they paid for my education, I must serve, even if it means giving my life for my country. It's OK if I have to die, but I'm not trying to get myself killed..."