Hello everyone, I recently translated this for Devil Pig Games, so I'll share it with the BGG community as well.

Original post by Guillaume Duprez, over here.

Hello everyone,

Since my return, I've been browsing the forum for updates. One topic that comes up regularly is the problem of the fragility of Light Vehicles in the Heroes System*. In fact, when I discuss it with you or look at the armies played in tournaments, Light Vehicles are played very little because they have a hard time surviving the first few rounds of the game. Troop transports are an exception and seen more often, but they often just serve as kamikaze vehicles: players move them as far as possible, disembark troops on an advantageous position and sacrifice their transport vehicle, preferably making it a shield or a barricade to block a passage... it's a good and fun tactic, but it's not very realistic.*

This is all the more unfortunate as Light Vehicles are one of the three main unit types of the Heroes System.

As some of you may know, Devil Pig Games is listening to the feedback from its community and has regularly updated the Heroes System by incorporating comments or changes from fan rules when it helped improve the game.

So Yann, Clem and I have been working on this Light Vehicle issue. The goal: to find a simple rule, using existing mechanics, preferably with a Hollywood touch, allowing you to get your Light Vehicles out of the garage. A red line not to be crossed: this rule should not require reprinting Light Vehicles or their Recruitment Options... it's a simple question of not making Light Vehicles obsolete.

Today, I have the dangerous privilege of presenting this rule to you and seeking your opinion:

Full Throttle

A unit receives a Full Throttle marker when it moves 5 or more spaces during its Movement Action, without passing through the same space twice. When activated, this fast-moving unit keeps the Full Throttle marker as long as it performs a Movement Action with the aforementioned conditions, otherwise the Full Throttle marker is discarded.

A unit with a Full Throttle marker:
• Can perform Firing Actions (with the Fire on the Move special ability), and can be the target of a Firing Action. In both cases the long range penalty applies, starting beyond 3 squares.
• Can perform Assaults as normal.
• Cannot be the target of Assaults.
• Cannot perform Alternate Firing Actions.
• Cannot be embarked.
• Cannot be disembarked.

Units inside a vehicle with a Full Throttle marker:
• Cannot perform Firing Actions.

Modification of the Ace Driver special ability.

In addition to the existing rules, a light vehicle with the Ace Driver special ability has the advantages of a Full Throttle marker but does not suffer the corresponding disadvantages.

Please note that this applies to the light vehicle and not to any units on board or wishing to board the vehicle.

Note: the Full Throttle rule applies not only to Light Vehicles but to all units with a Movement Value of 5 or more... limiting it to Light Vehicles seemed artificial to us. We checked the units that would benefit from this rule, there should be no side effect...

At this stage, this is not yet an official rule. We are submitting it to you for discussion.

If it is made official, it will be added to the Compendium's Additional Rules (such as Moral, Fire, Weather Conditions, ...). It would therefore be an optional rule unless you overwhelmingly request that it be included in the main body of the rules. This officialization could simply take the form of a downloadable PDF with most likely one scenario per Heroes System WWII range (HoN, SoN, HoS) to honor light vehicles.

It could also take the form of a card printed in a product around light vehicles. I won't tell you more about this at this point. I prefer to let you fantasize about what this product could be. We know you'll love it.

Again, I'm listening to your opinions. Feel free to test it out before making any returns.

Interesting -- so if you go full throttle, you are harder to hit and can get units to good spots faster. I assume when you are ready, you lost the token, disembark any troops etc. It is an interesting idea that might be fun to try out!

I think Full throttle rule is good, but LV (light vehicle) might be still weak. This is my variant rule for light vehicles. It can be combined with Full throttle rule. It's still just an idea, I've never played it with this variant yet.

AV (Total attack value)
DV (Defense value of LV)

AV=DV: LV receives 1 suppress marker.
AV=DV+1: LV receives 2 suppress markers.
AV=DV+2 or more: LV receives 1 damage.
Note) Each suppress marker LV has, add 1 to AV.

I'm going to try to play it with my variant soon.
